Introduction:
This course is a supplement to home preparation. You will still have to do much on your own [as you should with any preparation course], and a major goal of the workshop is to help you do that effectively. Enrollment capped at 35, so plan ahead! In addition, we need to have a minimum enrollment of 15—so it is not guaranteed that all sessions will go forward. Notice of upcoming courses and registration appears on the pre-law website (http://cae.ls.wisc.edu/prelaw.htm). Our email address is: cae@saa.ls.wisc.edu

Basics:
The course will consist of eight sessions of two to four hours each, meeting either in the evenings or on weekends, and usually in the law school. Some instructors hold six or eight meetings that are shorter in length, but the total in-class time is always 22 hours. The present cost is $200.00; texts can be purchased on the web. The course is not given for credit. Scholarships based on financial need, maybe available dependent on enrollment. Classes will be held at the UW Law School, room TBD.

Registration:
Registration is in-person only, on a first-come first-served basis, and application must be turned in to Jalanda Gibonéy. Unfortunately, I cannot take registrations by telephone, fax, or email.

Course structure:
In general, the basic structure of the workshop should look like this [note: there are 3 types of questions on the exam that are scored. They are dealt with individually in sessions 2-4. The more difficult sections (for most people) are handled first to give students more time to polish these skills and to ask questions throughout the course]. Test prep sessions are outlined below:

Spring 2016 Dates:
Saturday, April 2nd - Practice Test 1 (9:00am -1:00pm)
Sunday, April 3rd - Logical Reasoning 1 & 2 (9:00am – 1:00pm)
Monday, April 4th - Logic Games (6:00pm – 8:00pm)
Wednesday, April 6th - Logical Reasoning 3 (6:00pm – 8:00pm)
Tuesday, April 12th Reading Comprehension (6:00pm – 8:00pm)
Thursday, April 14th - Logic Games 2 (6:00pm – 8:00pm)
Sunday, April 17th - Practice Test 2 (9:00am – 1:00pm)
Monday, April 18th - Review (6:00pm – 8:00pm)

Throughout we discuss time management, test-taking strategies, critical thinking skills, and any questions students bring to the course.

Instructor:
Our instructor, Justin Top, obtained his bachelor degree at Kenyon College in Ohio 2014. After graduation, he relocated to Madison to work for CUNA Mutual group as a Contact Center Sales Representative. During that time, he self-studied for the LSAT exam and earned a 170 in December of 2014. Currently, he is first year student here at UW-Madison Law School and interested in helping students (and alumni) achieve the highest score possible on the LSAT.

Books & Materials:
Once you receive course confirmation, a list of books and information on where to buy them will be provided. We recommend that you purchase several previous LSATs from LSAC. These can be found on the LSAC website: www.lsac.org
Other options:
Remember that not every student will need to take a preparation course in order to adequately prepare for this critical exam.
